A Word from the Principal

Developing people has always been at the heart of the CRC. From the early vision of Ps Leo Harris through Crusade Bible School, we have believed in equipping people within the life of the local church; grounded in God's Word, empowered by the Holy Spirit and prepared to serve.

CRC College continues that legacy by partnering with local churches to raise and equip the next generation of leaders.

While individuals can undertake their own journey of learning and growth, there is something powerful about a church gathering a cohort to grow together — deepening their faith, discovering their gifts, developing practical ministry skills and stepping into greater responsibility.

Our desire is to see CRC churches intentionally invest in people, from those wanting to grow in their faith through to emerging leaders preparing for ministry.
Whether you are taking your own next step or developing leaders within your church, CRC College is designed to help make that journey possible.

In Christ,

Pastor Phil Cayzer
Principal - CRC College

Learners serve alongside experienced leaders and ministry teams, developing skills, character and confidence through practical ministry.

Missions
Churches may develop mission experiences for their cohort or connect learners with opportunities through CRC Missions.

A Gap Year can combine CRC College study with church involvement, mentoring, leadership development, missions and practical ministry experience.

Approved Voluntary Work — 55+
Eligible people aged 55 and over receiving income support may be able to meet mutual obligation requirements through Approved Voluntary Work.
For those aged 55–59, the requirements depend on how long they have received their payment. During the first 12 months, voluntary work generally needs to be combined with paid work or study; after 12 months, approved voluntary work may meet the full 30 hours per fortnight requirement. From age 60, approved voluntary work may be used to meet the 30-hour requirement. Services Australia must approve both the work and the organisation using the Verification of voluntary work form (SU462).

A participating church must be not-for-profit/community based, hold the required insurance and ensure volunteers are not replacing work normally performed by paid employees.

Ways to Participate

CRC College is designed to work across different ministry and learning contexts.

Whether you are seeking personal growth, developing people within your church or providing ministry training in a school environment, CRC College offers flexible ways to participate.

For Individuals
Join CRC College to grow in biblical understanding, ministry capability and leadership through one of our three levels of ministry training. Individuals may enrol directly and are encouraged, where possible, to connect with a local church cohort for shared learning, encouragement and practical ministry development.

For Churches
Establish a local CRC College cohort and create an intentional pathway for developing people within the life of your church.
CRC College provides the training framework, online learning, learner administration and support. The local church provides the community, leadership, mentoring and practical opportunities where learning can be applied.
For accredited learners, training and assessment requirements are managed in collaboration with Malyon Vocational Training (MVT), RTO 30002.

For Secondary Schools
Establish a CRC College cohort within your school, giving students the opportunity to develop biblical understanding, Christian leadership and practical ministry skills alongside their secondary education.
CRC College can work with schools to establish an appropriate training model, provide learning resources and support local facilitation.
Accredited participation remains subject to MVT approval and applicable state or territory school/VET requirements.

Start a Local Cohort

Develop people within the life of your church.
While learners may enrol individually, CRC College strongly encourages participation through a local cohort wherever possible.
We believe learning is strengthened when people study together, are supported by local pastors and leaders, and have opportunities to apply what they are learning in real ministry.
A cohort brings together biblical learning, community, mentoring and practical ministry, helping people grow not only in knowledge, but also in character, confidence and calling.

Why a Cohort?
A local cohort provides:
Connection — learners grow alongside others rather than studying alone.
Pastoral Support — local leaders help encourage and guide development.
Discussion — learning is strengthened through questions, reflection and shared experience.
Ministry Practice — learners apply what they are learning within the life of the church.
Leadership Development — churches can intentionally identify and develop emerging leaders.

CRC College provides the training framework, online learning, administration and support. The local church provides the people, leadership, mentoring and ministry environment.

What does a Church Need?

The basic requirements are simple:

- a local coordinator or facilitator
- a suitable learning environment
- a regular cohort meeting rhythm
- learners enrolled with CRC College
- pastoral support and opportunities for practical ministry

CRC College can work with each church or school to determine what is practical for its context.

Local Church Cohorts

Church cohorts receive 10% of eligible CRC College tuition fees paid in recognition of the local coordination, facilitation and learning environment they provide.
Churches may use this contribution to support their cohort, subsidise learners or assist with local training costs.

School Cohorts

Christian secondary schools may also establish CRC College cohorts, combining biblical and ministry training with the school's existing learning and leadership environment.

School cohorts receive 15% of eligible CRC College tuition fees paid in recognition of local coordination and facilitation.
CRC College works with the school to establish an appropriate delivery model, while accredited enrolment remains subject to Malyon Vocational Training requirements.

Printed Resource Option

CRC College can print and post learner resources directly to a church or school cohort. Where printed resources are selected, the cohort contribution is reduced by 5 percent to help offset printing and distribution costs.
